

BUTLER FILM

We've been Discovered.

It was a cold day, December 2008. Outside the air was whistling through the barren tree limbs while inside Holiday music played softly within the Butler Film walls. Things were coming to a close for the year. The staff was looking forward to spending time with loved ones. The office was bustling as we were doing our best to check out for a holiday break until...

“Rinnng.”

We received tidings of great joy.

This fateful call would change everything about our relationship with our neighbors at the Discovery Network in Silver Spring, MD. We were asked, in a flurry, to help with a little promo for the Science Channel shooting just after Christmas. From there, months would go by until another ring came in from the Discovery gang...but when it did, we found ourselves assisting with a landslide of projects that stayed close to Discovery's home.

We had the pleasure of being involved with promos for shows like “Deadly Women” (Investigation Discovery) “Forensics: You Decide” (Investigation Discovery), this year's coverage for Punkin' Chunkin' (Science Channel), a Halloween greeting for Planet Green and PSAs for the national PTA and Investigation Discovery about the seriousness of bullying in schools. In other words, our relationship with Discovery blossomed this past year.

We can't be sure that our holidays will bring us more joy from Discovery, but if the call comes while preparing a turkey or wrapping presents, we'll happily oblige.
